

On Campus

Farmers' market sprouting health, community

BY ADELA TALBOT

IF YOU HAVE yet to notice the hustle and bustle in the green space surrounding McIntosh Gallery on Tuesday afternoons, next week is your time to check it out.

Western's Farmers' Market, now in its third year, has transformed the campus community in a number of ways since a handful of local vendors first set up shop across from the Social Sciences Centre, said Gord Robinson, unit manager at Saugeen Maitland Hall.

"Farmers' markets are starting up all over. With Western being such a big place, and with so many different people here, we thought it was a great place to start something like that. We started off pretty small, with three or four vendors. And it just blossomed from there and it's only grown bigger," said Robinson, who has been the go-to guy on campus when it comes to the market initiative.

"I wasn't really engaged in the beginning. I thought I'd try it out. But now I see how much it's changed campus and what I've done," he continued.

"Now, I'm shopping local. I have three children and I'm looking to the future – you really see how much you can change the environment by buying local."

As it stands, there are roughly 15 different vendors on the roster now, and while not all are on campus every week, they all offer something different when they do stop by.

Western doesn't charge the farmers to set up produce stands, although Hospitality Services has a few stipulations for vendors who want to participate – they must be local and they have to be involved first-hand in the growing and production of their products.

"We're looking for natural, organic stuff and want people that are engaged with the food and have first-hand knowledge. And they have to be within 100 miles. The average food in the grocery store comes from 2,000 miles and, a lot of the time, the produce they bring in is not ripe," Robinson explained.

"They have to have a strong commitment to customers; they have to be engaged with customers and what they're selling. The passion has to be there."

And these folks are certainly engaged with the campus community, he continued. Students have said they enjoy talking with the vendors, as well as learning about farming practices and produce. Some of the vendors even pick specifically for members of the campus community now, bringing a more personalized haul when they come.

The vendors' presence near the art gallery has likewise changed the campus atmosphere on Tuesdays.

"They've brought to campus that knowledge base. And now with the community involvement, we have a community meeting place. You see a lot of people coming out to have lunch on the beautiful green space around the market and they're just hanging out. That's an amazing thing. We're all in different places around campus, everybody is busy, but you know you have that Tuesday."

Some of the vendors were once members of the Western community, added Janet Smith, marketing manager for Hospitality Services.

One man, who worked at Centre Spot, retired and has since purchased an acre of land, farming and growing his own produce, and still feeding the campus community, she said. But one vendor in particular stands out for her.

That vendor, Planting Seeds, is run by Kyle Hutcheson, a student at Western, Smith said. He had a really hard time sustaining himself while studying and was, at one point, seriously ill because he wasn't eating well.

"He came and spoke to us at a meeting and told his story. You take for granted that we can all get healthy and nutritious food. He was getting by, not necessarily making the right choices," she said.

"Buying local organic food is pricey and he started up his own program, bought an acre of land and started feeding himself. He has two students that work for him now and he pays them with produce. The rest he either sells or donates to My Sister's Place," Robinson added.

The campus community loves the availability of fresh local produce on campus and excitement for the market has grown on both sides, Smith said.

"Vendors are amazed at the enthusiasm of students and how they want to learn, talk to them, where they're from, their process. It makes them feel great to have that place to talk to students as well," she said.

"This is something big we believe in. It's about providing the service and the option, but also making sure they are eating healthy."

DOWN ON THE FARM:

Western's Farmer's Market is located centrally on campus in the green space near the McIntosh Gallery 11 a.m.-2 p.m. Tuesdays.

Do you know that Western may be changing your RRIF/LIF Program?

The change may have an impact on retired and soon to be retired faculty and staff.

We will be holding a very informative session on Wed., October 22nd, 2014 from 12:00 - 1:00 pm at Windermere Manor, North Meeting Room. Lunch will be served.

Get the information you require to make an informed decision about your pension/retirement assets.

Seating is limited. RSVP with Tara at 519-660-3261.

Mitch Orr, HBA, CPA, CMA, CFP
Senior Wealth Advisor &
Director, Wealth Management
519-660-3230

"I placed my pension assets with Mitch 18 years ago. Mitch has clearly understood our risk tolerance and investment goals and has always provided timely advice and professional guidance. I have every confidence that our funds could not have been managed better."

Dr. Bill Hopkins, Professor Emeritus UWO

 ScotiaMcLeod®

www.mitchorr.com

® Registered trademark of The Bank of Nova Scotia, used by ScotiaMcLeod under license. ScotiaMcLeod is a division of Scotia Capital Inc. Scotia Capital Inc. is a member of the Canadian Investor Protection Fund.

LIVE ON CAMPUS
in your UPPER YEARS.
Enjoy hassle-free residence living

GET YOUR ROOM CHOICE FOR 2015-2016 SOON!
Watch for details.

Minutes to class.
No need to cook.
Live with your friends.

www.residenceatwestern.ca

519-661-3547

 fb.com/westernRezLife

 @westernRezLife

Western
UNIVERSITY • CANADA

Gord Robinson, Saugeen Maitland Hall unit manager, is thrilled to see Western's Farmers' Market thriving on campus. "Now, I'm shopping local. I have three children and I'm looking to the future – you really see how much you can change the environment by buying local," he said. PHOTOS BY ADELA TALBOT // WESTERN NEWS

The Western Award of Excellence 2014 Presentation Reception

Monday, Oct. 27, 2014, 2:30 - 4:00 p.m. (The Great Hall)

Plan to attend the Western Award of Excellence Presentation Reception and help recognize and congratulate the following Western staff who were nominated for their exemplary service to the students, faculty, staff and alumni. Registration to attend the reception is available through MY HR under training. The course to register in is TWAE14. Visit uwo.ca/faculty_staff/awards for more information.

Individual Nominees:

Anna Vandendries-Barr (Chemistry)
 Anna Zuber (Education)
 Barb MacQuarrie (Education)
 Betty Chang (Western International)
 Brenda Davis (Schulich - Dentistry)
 Carol Fuller (Ivey)
 Catherine Trudgeon (Management & Organizational Studies)
 Colin Couchman (Education)
 Dawn Pavich (Psychology)
 Debbie Mayea (Schulich - Anatomy & Cell Biology)
 Denise Statham (Sociology)
 Diane Mills (Music)
 Dr. Jim Shaw (Student Health Services)
 Erin Woolnough (Music)
 Janet Williams (Mathematics)
 Jeff Shantz (Computer Science)
 Jennifer Tramble (Studies)
 Judy Hicken (Schulich - Undergraduate Medical Education)
 Katherine Manweiler (Engineering)

Kula Emmerson (Hospitality Services - Lucy's Tim Horton's)
 Lily Noel (Schulich - Undergraduate Medical Education)
 Lori Johnson (Geography)
 Melanie Caldwell (Centre for Theory & Criticism)
 Melissa Gordan (Science)
 Mihaela Harnos (Graduate and Postdoctoral Studies)
 Terry Rice (Communications and Public Affairs)
 Terry Slivinski (Mathematics)
 Theresa Mugimba (Schulich - Human Resources)
 Warren Lindsay (Chemistry)

Team Nominees:

MPH Program Administrative Staff

- Courtney Hambides
- Diana Lee
- Judith Thomas
- Lisa Metselaar

Sociology Staff

- Amy Jacob
- Denise Statham
- Emily Van Houtte
- Luan Chau
- Sandra Vilovski-Anjoli

Staff at Lucy's Café

- Ali Zhang
- Evan Shannon
- Helen Lam
- Kula Emmerson
- Lenuta Piele
- Linda Ma
- Ling Ning
- Lisa Bayliss
- Lotti Wilson
- Luke McCabe
- Minh Ha
- Nicolina Ficca
- Xiao Chen
- Zhengyi Li

Western

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month. We're asking for your help to spread the word about Breast Cancer Screening. It's as easy as 1,2,3.

ONE LUCKY WINNER WILL RECEIVE A $250 GIFT CARD TO A SPA OF HER CHOICE!

1 Call your girlfriends, mother, daughters, aunts, or sisters and encourage those over 50 to book a mammogram or talk to their doctor about screening.

2 Bust out your camera and snap a picture that illustrates what being a "breast" friend means to you. Get creative!

3 "Like" the South West Regional Cancer Program on Facebook and upload your photo to be entered into the draw.

DRAW WILL TAKE PLACE NOV 3, 2014. ENTER BY OCT 31 TO QUALIFY. VISIT SOUTH WEST REGIONAL CANCER PROGRAM ON FACEBOOK FOR MORE INFO.

south west regional cancer program